Protecting the Public

THE BILL INTRODUCED by Labor Minister Peterson to provide British Columbia with a mediation commission is a logical step for the protection of the public interest. A number of labor leaders have been quick to label this proposed legislation vicious, dictatorial, the worst kind of compulsion. But the only freedom it limits is the freedom of one or both parties to a dispute gravely to disrupt the economy, or otherwise use the public welfare as a weapon.

The part of the bill on which labor is concentrating its opposition is the section empowering the cabinet, if it believes such action is necessary to protect the public interest and welfare, to refer a dispute to the mediation commission, to order that a strike or lockout shall cease at once, and to order that the decision of the commission will be final and binding on both parties.

But Mr. Peterson—besides offering the assurance that this power would be used only when essential services were affected or when a tie-up in a major industry had gone to the length that the whole province was suffering—also has made the cogent point that the decision by an independent commission, wellinformed, well-qualified, well-paid, would be preferable to the government itself stepping in at the 11th hour

Several other provisions of the bill appear to invite welcome from labor and management alike. These include the sections that would mean a speeding-up of bargaining; advancing the time set for the start of negotiations before the expiry of an agreement, and elimination of conciliation boards and government-supervised strike votes. They also include the estab-lishment of the commission itself as a completely independent body with research facilities to guide it in trying to reach reasonable settlements.

Civil servants already being denied the right to wike, the bill does not alter their position in this respect except to add a penalty in the form of a fine which could be severe. But it may be seen as an advance for them that unresolved differences between them and the Civil Service Commission may be referred to the mediation commission, and the cabinet may order that its decisions be binding on both sides.

If the bill passes, performance and not expressed intent will be the basis of judgment. But the whole voting public will judge, and this is the essence of the democracy which one union leader fears is passing from the British Columbia labor scene.

Dangerous Precedent

THE REASSURANCE FELT by many Canadians following the diplomatic and statesmanlike performance of Prime Minister Lester Pearson during the federal-provincial conference has been dissipated by his stand in the current parliamentary crisis.

It is the position of Mr. Robert Stanfield, leader of the Progressive Conservatives, that it is not constitutional for a defeated government to attempt to place any business before the Commons.

any business before the Commons.

What the prime minister is asking of the House is the repudiation of a decision already taken.

the House and a combined Opposition of 132. But of these latter, three are independents. One is Mr. Maurice Allard, from Sherbrooke, who says he will vote against the motion. It is conceivable, then, that Mr. Gilles Gregoire, the independent separatist from Lapointe, actually holds the balance of power. If he were to vote to save the government the lamentable precedent would be created by which Opposition could he forever frustrated.

Oppressed People

DRESIDENT JULIUS NYERERE of Tanzania, once viewed by the Western world as one of the most responsible African leaders because of his broad and progressive policy of granting equal rights to all citizens of his republic regardless of race, color or creed, seems suddenly to be suffering from a major break-down—or complete loss—of his ideals.

Certainly a number of tribal communities within his own country as well as a senior official of the neighboring Republic of Kenya, see Dr. Nyerere as something considerably less than the image he has created of himself.

His main critics in both countries are Masai tribesmen whose spokesmen charge that the Tanzanian president is deliberately "humiliating and insulting as savages" the Tanzania section of the tribe.

Canada Embarrassed Economically

The most important question hanging over the defeat of the government on Finance Minister Sharp's tax bill is how it will affect Canada's recently-shaken dollar.

The big 14 to 16-inch grilse are at last taking readily to surface trolled flies in Saanich Inlet, mainly along the Bamberton shore and in Finlayson Arm.

They appeared to have moved out of the Willis Point and Indian Bay waters at mid-week, Red bucktalls, Flashtails, or Myl-R-Flies have been taking them. There are now lots of jumpers around and trick seems to be to find the jumpers and then stay with them for some good fishing.

Sidney Spit and Coal Island have been good producers of big springs in the 18 to 20-pound class.

Oak Bay is still a good bet for winter springs and gribe. So is Victoria waterfront. We found them last week in Esquimalt Harbor while fishing with Frank Albany. Watch for Sunday's column for that story.

Chemainus Harbor is still giving up winter springs and Crofton is providing grilse fishing.

* * Alberni Valley and Little Qualicum seem to be the only fairly bright prospects on the steelhead picture, but that picture can always change over night.

The Little Qualicum has been fairly good for those who know where to fish them, reports Murray Cree. Some of the old favorite spots in the meadow haven't been producing too well, but there are other spots where the fish seem to lie and anglers who have found these spots have had good luck. Mel and Theda Bardsley, from Malton, Ont., got 12 steelhead from the Little Qualicum on their two-week vacation at Cree's Court, and they only fished two or three easy hours

A number of trout have been taken in Trout Creek, north of Campbell River, but most have been in spawning condition and too black to be kept by sportsmen.

'Province Should Pay For Measles Vaccine

Dr. Ray Parkinson (NDP, Vancouver Burrard) Thursday attacked the provincial government for refusing to pay the cost of measles vaccine, a program that would prevent "needless deaths and needless damage."

He said most Canadian previnces new included measles in their free immunication programs but B.C. was still trying to shuffle off the costs onto local governments and community groups.

"He (Health Minister Wesley Black) cannot delay this, as more children may die or be damaged needlessly," said Dr. Parkinson. "It would only cost $100,000."

Freight Rise Opposed

Victoria will join other Island municipalities in a strong protest against a proposed increase, in freight rates.

A letter from the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities, read at Thursday's meeting of city council, pointed out that the truckers were asking the motor carrier branch of the provincial Public Utilities Commission for a 5-per-cent boost on freight from Vancouver to Victoria and 10-per-cent on hauls between Island points.

TIGHT THIS' Ald. Baird said the city should make "strenuous objections." "It's particularly unusual when you consider that they are coming back so soon after being given an increase. We must fight this to keep retail prices in Victoria and on the Island at a realistic level."

(A 6-per-cent increase was granted to truckers in March 1967 on large loads between the mainland and Vancouver Island. The increase was much greater on smaller loads.)

Garden Notes

Safe Chemicals

Further to my recent notes on the uses of the watering can, here are a few more chemical solutions for the treatment of various conditions in the

Permanganate of potash is a most versatile chemical in the garden, and while it is expensive, a little of it goes a long way; I bought a dollar's worth three years ago and I still have some

It comes in the form of little brown crystals and it turns water pink, red, or deep purple, depending on how strong

A very small pinch in a gallon of water turns it a deep pink, and at this strength it is an excellent mild fungicide.

Applied to sown seeds and young seedlings, it prevents damping-off disease, a common cause of seed

The same strength solution applied about once a month to parsnips guards against parsnip rust.

A stronger solution, one level tea-spoonful per gallon, can be used to rid a tawn of earthworms.

While it doesn't kill these worthy tillers of the soil, it seems to be distasteful to them. Where wormcasts are marring the lawn, a deep purple solution of permanganate, applied with a watering can, will bring them wriggling to the surface where they can be swept up and transferred to more useful posts in the vegetable plot or Permanganate at this strength will also kill moss in the lawn, applying enough to dreach thoroughly the mossy patches. Don't worry about an overdose - it can't hurt the grass.

Mind you, you can't correct a mossy lawn just by killing the moss. As I have explained many times, moss is a symptom, not an fil in itself.

You have to correct the underlying conditions that gave rise originally to the mossy lawn - poor drainage impoverished or compacted soil, and poor aeration.

With these factors attended to, the moss would eventually disappear of its own accord, but you can speed the parting guest with a watering can filled with the port-wine-colored permangan-

A stronger and more positive-solution for killing moss is ferrous sulphate, half a cupful per gallon. This is faster-acting than the permanganate, but it is somewhat corrosive and may turn the grass black.

While the injury is usually only temporary, I prefer to try the safe and innocuous permanganate first, holding the iron sulphate solution in reserve to Incidently, if you use a galvanised iron watering can, you'll have to rines it out VERY thoroughly after using ferrous sulphate, for this stuff rusts everything it touches.

Common borax finds its way into my watering can for several uses. A very ficiency in beets and turnips — two vegetables in which a shortage of boron in the soil produces disconcerting symptoms. An overdose is bad business, and not more than one scant teaspoonful per gallon should be used.

Remove the rose from the watering can and pour a thin stream of solution, about the diameter of a pendi, along the rows on both sides of the plants.

In heavier dosages — one cupful per gallon — borax makes an efficient and long-lasting vegetation killer to prevent the growth of grass and weeds in driveways and paths.

Use plenty of the solution — enough to saturate thoroughly the soll underlying the gravel or cinder path. The vegetation will die slowly, and nothing at all will grow in the treated area for at least two years.

ARTHUR HOPPE Reports Victory in West Vhtnng

Crafty Ho Ho Ho Surrenders

It was in the 43rd year of the lightning campaign to wipe the dread Vict Narian guerrillas out of West Vhtning. The war had long seemed a staisment, but suddenly U.S. efforts were crowned with a series of brilliant victories.

In quick succession, the enemy overrun the capital of Sag On, the nouthern capital of Hooey, 27 district capitals and several regiments of the Loyal Royal Army who got in It was in the 43rd year of Loyal Royal Army who got in their way.

"Oh, what a famous victory!" the U.S. ambassador, after reading a cable from Weshington, told the Victorongian premier of the

"It is?" said General Hoo with surprise, for he was often unable to understand the inscrutable occidental mind.
"Certainty," said the em-bassador, checking the cable run."

"Which | w a y ?" | inquired General Hoo politely, ducking under a deak as the west wall of the embersy variabed in a cloud of dust.

But despite General Hoo's initial misgivings, the spirit of victory proved contagious. Through more ingenious tactical manoeuvers, General trick the enemy into seizing 98.2 per cent of the countryside. And in those glorious hours, the Loyal Royal Army surrendering in droves.

By April, the U.S. secretary of defence was able to tell a cheering Congress that 537 U.S. aircraft had been shot down over East Vhtmnng in the preceding week. "No nation," he said, "can long endure that many big, heavy airplanes falling on it."

And when the news broke that the U.S. aircraft carrier Enterprise had been boarded and captured by three fish peddlers in a sampan, jubilation knew no bounds.

"Little does the enemy realise," said the triumphant U.S. president over nationwide television as crowds danced in city, "what the upkeep is on a ship that size. Why, the cost of brass polish alone will bankrupt them."

Even so, the war might have dragged on if the crafty premier of East Vhinnng, Ho Ho Ho, hadn't called up the leader of the dread Narians, Hoo Nhoes Hoo. Premier Ho craftily. "Let's surrender."

The historic surrender ceremonies were held abourd the Enterprise in Sag On

"You licked us fair and square," said Premier Ho, to the American ambassador.

"How did you ever expect to defeat a country," said the ambassador with a patropiz-ing smile, "that has never lost

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) -- Bonnie and Clyde are both staying luxuriously at the Beverly Wilshire. Clyde, Warren Beatty, is in the suite exactly above the one occupied by Bonnie, Faye Dunaway. Fay is in town to discuss a new contract with Warner Bros.-Seven Arts and Otto Preminger's lawsuit against her. He claims she owes him some pictures. Warren is busy long-distancing Julie Christie in London and deciding on his next picture, which will probably be with Joe Levine. I'll take bets with anyone that Bonnie and Clyde win some oscars. It will be a tight threefilm race for the top awards among The Graguate, In the Heat of the Nignt and Bonnie and Clyde, Mike Nichols was more angry than Levine at Larry Turman's omission of Joe's name when he accepted an award recently for The Graduate This is Levine's production and the insult certainly seemed deliberate to me.

Jordan Chirstopher soon will be as well known as a screen actor as Sybil Burton's first husband, Richard Burton. He's a good bet for the leading role in Hal Prince's first film Barlow's Kingdom. In his recently completed movie, The Tree, Sybil's second husband plays a boy who rep sister, suffers guilt and suicides. Is there nothing that can't Dustin Herrman is so anxious to appear in John Schlesinger's Midnight Cowboy that he is willing to play the second lead. With his big hit in The Graduate, Dustin can have all starring roles from now on. "Actually," he told me,

Discusses Censorship SYDNEY HARRIS

A few weeks ago, in a column about "false analogy," I mentioned the fan-tastic mental contortions that people go through to "prove a point." That same day, I saw a marvelous example in a

A reader had written to the TV columnists: "I object to ensorship by anyone for any reason. replied: "Then why obey stop signs and red lights? They are a form of censorship . . . since they interfere with one's freedom of movement."

This is the kind of shabby "reasoning" that most people use to nail down an argument, a moment's reflection would show us that there is absolutely no analogy between censorship of films or books and traffic regulations. In fact, they are directly oppos to one another.

Stop signs and red lights do "interfere" with anyone's freedom; they make it possible to move freely and safely in any direction one wants to go. Without them, there would be chaos and carnage all over the streets. We have "freedom of movement" only when the same regulations are operable for everyone.

Censorship of books or regulation for freedom of (intellectual) movement, but a restriction upon some to satisfy the moral standards of others. It is, in a sense, class legislation, permitting one group to decide what others shall read or hear or see.

A true analogy to traffic rules would be this: if all the people who owned Fords and Chevvies decided that the minority who owns Imperials or Lincolns could not make a right turn where the Fords or Chevvies could; or if the Lincoln owners had to wait through two red lights while only had to wait through one.

This would be discriminatory legislation. But a fair system of stop signs and red lights violates no "freedom," for it simply facilitates the right of everyone to drive where he pleases, in orderly fashion. In fact, without order there can be no freedom; the two are not contrary, but interwoven.

Censorship, however, does not impose order; it imposes the standards of one group upon another, not for the common good, but for the moral satisfaction of ruling group.

ple of censorship run amok. For, alas, the nature of censorable to to run amok.

two of four people killed in a two-car collision Saturday night on the Malahat near Goldstream Park entrance. Services will be conducted by Rev. Leighton Streight, chairman of Victoria Presbytery, and Rev. H. W. Kerley.

British Motor Corporation representatives from Toronto, and members of B.C.'s Automotive Retailers Association will attend the services.

Equator Service Marked

The Royal High Court of the Raging Main reigned aboard the destroyer-escort HMCS Columbia and initiated 14 naval officer cadets of Venture Division, Esquimalt, and 118 members of the ship's company.

The occasion was the recent crossing of the Equator between Hawaii and the Fiji Islands. The Columbia, on a naval officer cadet sea-training cruise in the South Pacific, will stop at Pago Pago for refuelling today. She will leave for Suva Saturday and is due back in Esquimalt March 21.

The Crossing-the-Line ceremony, one source claims, began the 17th Century when passengers of ships entering the Strait of Gibraltar were forced to pay a fee or be dunked from the yardarm.

The practice was later tranferred to the tropics and eventually to the Equator. Other sources claim it originated with the Royal Navy's East Indian fleef during the tenure of Admiral Horatio Nelson.

The senior ranking tadpole, or uninitiated, aboard the Columbia, was her executive officer Lt.-Condr. Robert Whyte. He was the dist to be tossed into a tank of light water. When the ceremony was over, all the tadpoles had become shellbacks.

PEOPLE AND PROGRAMS: Steve Allen may be coming back to talk-show TV. The first and most popular of the daytime talkies, Mike Douglas, has switched his New York outlet to the CBS station. Westinghouse, producers of the Douglasi show and owners of his former station. are expected to sign Allen as a replacement.

The Pat Boone show may be junked by Westinghouse and that, as many callers to me have asked, could mean the return of Perry Mason to a daytime slot on Channel 7 . . . CTV's Sunday- evening W5 has demoted host Ker Cavanaugh and dropped female host Merle Shain . . . Dorothy Malone is leaving Peyton Place after four years Lucille Ball, who doesn't need the cash, has signed for another year with CBS.

BUREAU OF USE-LESS INFORMATION: Thursday's tenuous answer - Scenery-wise, as they say, Mount Rushmore was where Hitchcock's North by Northwest ended, King Kong got it on the Empire State Building, Hitchcock's Saboteur fell from the Statue of Liberty and Niagara Falls was where Marilyn Monroe was murdered in Niagara. Today's question— Children in TV series are usually nauseating,

Danny Thomas. Answers

"We'll return to 'French Chef' in a moment—please stand by."

By RON COLLISTER Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA - The embattled Pearson government is expected to survive its confibrought to a vote this side of a general election.

The confidence motion is expected to be presented to the Commons today and the fiery debate will begin. There is no sign yet about how long the debate will last. The opposition reaction varies between New Democrat leader T. C. Douglas' view, that it should last one day and a vote should be taken: to the view of some Conservatives, that it should never allowed to come to a vote.

The argument put forward by the Tory group is that the motion establishes a prece-

This argument has been rejected by the government, which counters that there are precedents for defeats in the Commons not leading to the resignation of a government.

Parliament has been paralysed since the defeat of the government on Monday on legislation to impose a 5 per CHEMAINUS-The three-storey hotel was shaking. People ran down corridors, and in a few minutes the large building had been emptied of nightclub patrons, and guests in night clothes.

That was the scene North Cowichan Coun. Gerry Smith witnessed 11:30 p.m., Jan. 31, at a resort hotel in Acapulco. The cause was an earthquake that originated about 250 iles away in the Pacific Ocean.

Mr. Smith said the first and lesser wave came a few nutes before the whole hotel started shaking. The big shock lasted about half a minute.

By RON COLLISTER

OTTAWA — The embattled Pearson government is expected to survive its confidence test, if it can be brought to a vote this side of a general election.

The confidence motion is expected to be presented to the Commons today and the fiery debate will begin. There is no sign yet about how long the debate will last. The opposition reaction varies between New Democrat leader T. C. Douglas' view, that it should last one day and a vote should be taken: to the view of some Conservatives, that it should never be allowed to come to a vote.

The argument put forward by the Tory group is that the

The announcement comes amid a dispute with the federal government over jurisdiction in broadcasting.
